UK FAQs

Will I need a furniture package?

9 out of 10 tenants are looking for fully-furnished properties. Whilst furnishing your unit is optional, it is recommended to optimise rental income and expedite the tenancing process. If you choose to leave your property unfurnished, you will need to purchase window dressings as a minimum. We source furniture suppliers who will provide bespoke packages to compliment the look and feel of the apartment.

The quote is to fully-furnish your unit by our appointed interior design installation team to give your unit that designer edge.

Will you be present for the handover?

Our local office conducts the handover in two stages, the first inspection prior to completion by way of checking the status of the premises against developer specifications and then secondly upon completion to ensure any defects have been rectified. We then accept the property on your behalf. We collect the keys, meter readings, documentation and produce a final report on the status of the unit for your records, including photos.

This process ensures peace of mind for our landlords residing overseas.

How will you make sure the tenants look after my property?

An independent inventory of the property is taken when the tenants move in and again at the end of the tenancy. 5 weeks' rent is taken as a security deposit from tenants and if any damage aside from normal wear and tear is recorded then a deduction will be made from the deposit. This process is governed by the government-introduced Tenancy Deposit Scheme which protects both landlords and tenants.

We are also able to offer contents insurance through our recommended supplier, and rent and legal protection insurance at the start of the tenancy.

Can I approve the tenant?

The normal process for our office is to show units to potential tenants, and once an offer is made, the details are sent to accept the offer. A financial reference check is carried out by an independent credit referencing agency to ensure the tenant's suitability for the tenancy.

Do I have to pay tax on my rental income?

You need to fill in and submit an assessment form as a non-resident landlord to be assessed by the relevant authorities in the UK. Complete will be able to assist you with completing the forms and we can refer you to a specialist UK Tax Accountant if required.

The German Market Model

In Germany we offer two options for types of rental agreements:

1. Limited-time specific contracts

These are usually used for smaller apartment types such as micro-apartments, where the requirement is for shorter-term tenancies of 12 to 24 months. The rent is a fixed rate, and the tenant pays a fixed contribution to the heating and hot water costs. The deposit is two months' gross rent.

2. Rental contract for an unlimited time

This is the standard type of rental agreement in Germany and the one that is clearly governed by German law. This agreement can only be terminated by either party for specific reasons, and the tenant pays an amount towards the operating costs of the building, as well as the heating and hot water costs, which can vary each year depending on usage. Typically, there is a scaled rent agreed upon with a 2-3% increase in rent every year for the next five years. The deposit charge is calculated as three monthly net rent payments.

Clients will be provided with more information on the two rental agreement options when looking for a tenant. Complete's fees are payable on the gross rent including the operating and heating and hot water costs.

Ongoing costs related to the property include Hausgeld payments, which are charged by the building management company for the operating costs related to the building (these are payable monthly), and Land Tax, which is payable to the local authority on a quarterly basis. Complete is able to settle these payments on your behalf if we have sufficient funds in your account.

Complete is able to set up Trust Accounts for clients who require a bank account to be set up on their behalf in Germany. This is a separate service, and charges will be provided on request.

Germany FAQs

How will you make sure the tenants look after my property?

An inventory of the property is taken when the tenants move in and again at the end of the tenancy. A deposit is taken from the tenants and if any damage aside from normal wear and tear is recorded, a deduction will be made from the deposit. In Germany, this deposit is held in a secure account. At the end of the tenancy, the property will be inspected for any damage or repair requirements.

Do I have to pay on my rental income?

You will be liable for tax on your rental income. Complete can refer you to a specialist Tax Accountant if required.

Will I need a furniture package?

Short-term rental agreements in Germany require apartments to be furnished. We source furniture suppliers who will provide bespoke packages to compliment the look and feel of the apartment. The quote is to fully-furnish your unit by our appointed interior design installation team to give your unit that designer edge to attain the optimum rental income and high-quality professional tenant.

Can I approve the tenant?

The normal process is for our office to show the units to potential tenants. Once an offer is made, the details are sent to you to accept the offer. A reference check is carried out internally to ensure the tenant's suitability for the tenancy. This includes employment, credit checks, and previous landlord history where available.

Will you be present for the handover?

Our local office conducts the handover by checking the status of the premises against developer specifications. Upon completion, we ensure any defects have been rectified. We then accept the property on your behalf, handling keys, meter readings, documentation, and producing a final report on the unit's status, along with photos, for your records. This process ensures peace of mind for our international investors residing overseas.

Do I need insurance?

In most cases, buildings insurance is covered within the service charge (hausgeld). We can assist in arranging contents insurance.

What are your fees?

Our fees are very competitive for the market in both Berlin and Leipzig.

Handover service fees are payable on instruction and vary according to the size of the property.
